

Our speaker today is an expert in developing concepts and systems to improve individual and business performance. He is a seasoned entrepreneur and management professional with direct experience in capital markets, technology, and professional service industries. His firm Black & Essington Solutions, advises companies on business strategy & execution, staff development, and financing.

He is also an Adjunct Professor of Business and Economics for Governors State University and Prairie State College. He is a graduate of Governors State University with a B.A. in Business Administration and also holds a Master of Science in Finance from the Illinois Institute of Technology Stuart School of Business in Chicago, Illinois.

I would like to present Brian A. Thompson to talk to you about

“

”